RESEARCH INTERESTS

I am interested in various topics of cosmology. Specifically, I am much focused on the observational constraints of various cosmological models needed to understand the expansion history of the universe. For this purpose, I am taking several astronomical datasets and investigating how they constrain any cosmological theory. This is one of the exciting fields of research because this enables us to understand the limitations of the underlying cosmological theory, if any. The specific research areas where I often travel are:

1. Dark energy
2. Modified gravity theories
3. Matter creation as an alternative to both dark energy and modified gravity models
4. Dynamics of the early universe
5. Tensions in the cosmological parameters and their alleviations
6. Gravitational Waves

RESEARCH COLLABORATION

Since the time of my doctoral work, I have been collaborating with many active researchers working the field of gravitation and cosmology. Currently, we have a strong collaborating group where mainly we are working on the theoretical models of the universe's evolution and finally we are testing them using the observational data with an aim to test their viabilities as well as we are trying to provide with the precise measurements of the cosmological parameters. The latter part needs the statistical analysis of the astronomical data. Here, I give the list of my present and past collaborating institutes.
