

Be the hero and fight corruption: Striving towards a corruption-free University

“The corruption of the best things gives rise to the worst.” — David Hume

The fight against corruption has slowly taken on the form of a crusade in our country and it is slowly, but steadily yielding fantastic results across all sectors and sections of the society.

Universities play a crucial role in moulding students into better human beings and responsible citizens and it is absolutely necessary to ensure that students are given the opportunity to grow and spread their wings in a conducive environment which not only enhances their academic potential but also allows them to prosper in an atmosphere which is free from the toxic and vicious culture of corruption of all kinds.

Presidency University has always maintained a zero-tolerance policy against all forms of corruption and has taken efficient administrative measures to ensure that stakeholders associated with the University are actively discouraged from engaging, willfully or even unknowingly, in any form of corruption relating to matters of the University. The employees of the University are required to strictly adhere to the policy of maintaining official secrecy and do not trade in, divulge or tamper official information of any kind related to matters of the academic, administrative and other relevant sectors of the University. Engaging in acts of theft, dishonesty, fraud and misappropriation of funds and property related to the University are seen as acts of gross misconduct and strict disciplinary measures are instituted against the accused and strong penalties are imposed if the accused is found guilty after thorough and impartial investigation of the matter. The performance and the conduct of the employees are assessed at regular intervals and the authorities follow strict measures to ensure that there is no breach or lapse on the part of employees in the fight against corruption.

Presidency University also arranges for regular anti-corruption awareness programs and it takes great pride in its responsible efforts towards maintaining an honest, dedicated and highly skilled workforce which enable the University to maintain a high-level of administrative competence and academic excellence and allows the University to emerge as a leader in the field of education.
